HOPE LODGE BALTIMORE:

Access to World-Class Care and a Place of Healing

The American Cancer Society is launching a $10 million capital campaign to reimagine, relocate, and renovate Hope Lodge Baltimore to meet the needs of cancer patients from around the world who travel to Baltimore to access the most promising treatments and outcomes for their cancer type.

For many patients, the cost of traveling to Baltimore and staying for extended periods of time is beyond their financial capability. With a typical regimen of surgery and radiation therapy lasting from six to eight weeks, and hotel rooms costing approximately $175 a night, out-of-pocket expenses for lodging alone can exceed $9,000.

To respond most effectively to the needs of patients whose lives depend on access to effective cancer treatment in Baltimore, the American Cancer Society has committed to relocating our Hope Lodge community to a new facility. This move will allow us to increase our guest rooms from 26 to 34, expanding our capacity by over 30%, and allowing us to offer an additional 2,920 room nights to cancer patients and caregivers annually.

We need your help. Your support will allow us to expand and improve Hope Lodge Baltimore to meet the needs of more patients facing cancer. Your investment in the Hope Lodge program today is an investment in the lives of cancer patients for years to come. Naming opportunities are available from $20,000 to $10 million.

Hope Lodge has made my father's treatment and care so much more enriching. I can't imagine what cancer patients would do without Hope Lodge. If we had to stay at a hotel, there would be no place to eat, no company or support, and no transportation. The people here are so generous and uplifting. We couldn't have survived the treatment for my father without the Hope Lodge. It was a godsend. ~Cynthia, caregiver
